Episcopalians Within Church Province of Washington Launch Campaign.

THREE BISHOPS SPEAK AT BIG MASS MEETING

Dr. Harding Asks Hearers to Help Disprove Statement That "Christ- ianity Is a Failure."

A campaign to bring to the attention of Episcopalians within the church province of Washington the necessity of raising the sum of $1,000,000 in missionary offerings during the current year, instead of the $500,000 that was raised last year, was launched last night at a missionary mass meeting held under the auspices of the Episcopal diocese of Washington at the Metropolitan Hotel. The province of Washington in the Episcopal Church includes the dioceses of Washington, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and other nearby sections.

Stirring addresses were made at the meeting, and the Marine Band led the chorists from seven of the Episcopal churches of the capital. Not a seat was vacant in the great auditorium and the attendance was so great that after standing room at the rear of the hall was filled it was necessary to deny admission to many who desired to be present.

Bishop Harding presided, flanked on either side by Rev. E. H. Tappan, Bishop of the diocese of Maryland, and Rev. William Cabell Brown, Bishop of the diocese of Virginia. At three o'clock the address was given by Rev. Arthur M. Sherman, a missionary who has spent fourteen years in China, and Rev. E. C. Macfarland, a member of the Episcopal board of missions.

Bishop Harding sounds keynote. The keynote of the meeting was sounded by Bishop Harding when he said:

"When the Provincial Synod in Pittsburgh unanimously adopted the report of the standing committee on missions, it was by the equally unanimous voice of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Province of Washington, it committed every baptized member of the church to this great altruistic Christian project.

"Who can refuse to do his share in bearing the banner of Christian sacrifice, Christian loyalty and Christian service? The world says 'this war proves that Christianity is a failure.' Christian men, women and children, let us show the world by the action proposed, that on the contrary the war has increased the flame of our Christian spirit, so that in its light we can see beyond our own selfish interests and behold the Savior's vision of the universal brotherhood of man in the fellowship of Christ.

"The report to which Bishop Harding alluded as having been adopted by the standing committee on missions, the standing committee is empowered to enlist as far as possible all missionary organizations within the province, especially the diocesan men's missionary committees, the Woman's Auxiliary, the Sunday School, the Y. M. C. A., to the end that not only every one of our 204,000 communicants be given an opportunity to make a weekly offering, but also in addition the largest possible number of our adherents who are not communicants."

Bishop Harding declared "We are here tonight to do something," and immediately afterward, although it was announced that no collection would be taken up at the meeting, announcements were read from the platform that announced that the audience had pledged themselves, respectively, one for $2,000 and another for $1,000 for the cause of the Chinese missions in particular.

Bishop Talbot's Address.

In an epigrammatic address, filled with word pictures, Bishop Talbot declared that the missionary idea is like the idea animating a great army—it succeeds by virtue of its conquests. He made a plea for national protection and patriotism, and pointed out the danger of failing to spread the doctrines of Christianity among the thousands of immigrants who will come to this country, he said, as a consequence of the war in Europe.

"We must share our Christianity," he said, "with the foreigners who are rapidly making up the population of this country. The missions are not the side show of the church. They are not addenda. They are vital and fundamental to the whole world. It has been said that Christianity is the only religion in the world not founded upon blood or dogmatic statement. It is founded upon a life. The only way you can keep your Christianity is to give it away."

"We have been wondering in the board of missions what the next call would be from England, and now we have heard the remarkable story that the English church has done more for missions during this year than ever before in its history. If this war lasts much longer, England's resources must be used up, and we shall be called upon to help out over there. If it lasts much longer we shall be obliged to help out Germany and France and all those other countries at war."

"We must get ready, now. There is enormous wealth in the Episcopal Church, and we must face this crisis at this time."

Conditions in China.

Rev. Arthur M. Sherman told of conditions in China, declaring that European statesmen are looking with longing eyes on that country. He described the vast natural wealth and resources, and contrasted these with the poverty of the great majority of its population, both physically and spiritually.

"China will one day be one of the greatest forces for Christianity in the world," Mr. Sherman said. "When China is Christian the end of the work of christianizing the world will be in sight. The opportunities for the Christian missionary work are double."

Bishop Brown Tells of Brazil.

Bishop Brown of Virginia, who is the president of the board of missions, and who spent many years as a missionary in Brazil, advised that what ever giving is done in connection with the appeal for the $1,000,000 the church wants, shall be done in connection with the Lenten season. He told some striking things about the condition of the church in Brazil.

"The missionary work has been in progress in Brazil," Bishop Brown said, "for twenty-five years. That is, of course, a short period in church work, but now I may say that the church is strongly established in southern Brazil. We have church buildings bought and paid for and consecrated. With three exceptions they were all built for by the people themselves. We have a large number of Sunday schools. Now, it is difficult, if not often impossible, for the Anglo-American mind to thoroughly understand the viewpoint of the Latin mind within a single generation. Therefore, we have had difficulties. But our native clergy in Brazil, I dare say, are far and away the best educated native clergy in the world. Our church in Brazil has done more in the way of self-support than any mission in this country. Last year we received less assistance from home than any mission in the world with the exception of Porto Rico, yet the young Brazilian church gave more than twice as much last year as it has ever done toward its own support."

"The church has reached out and it has now established itself in Rio de Janeiro. Our translation of our Prayer Book into Portuguese, the language of Brazil, is the only complete translation of our Prayer Book into any foreign language, and the Bible has now been translated into Portuguese."

Should Give Systematically.

Bishop Brown declared that it is one of the weaknesses of the church that it has never learned to give systematically. He urged that this be done in connection with the present campaign, and pointed out in detail what such systematic giving would do.

Rev. Mr. Marsh delivered a breezy talk, in which he described how to be willing to take as much trouble for their own and each other's souls as they do for their bodies. He paraphrased a quotation from the Bible to the effect that "it profits a man to save his soul and lose the whole world" in order to impress upon his hearers the necessity for missionary work throughout the world.

Mixed Claims Commissioner, After Seeing President, Talks on Latin American State.

Judge Arthur R. Thompson, member of an authority on international law, with a wide knowledge of Latin American affairs, in an interview today strongly urged the ratification of the Nicaraguan canal treaty now pending before the Senate.

Judge Thompson yesterday was called into conference by the President on affairs in Nicaragua, where Judge Thompson recently spent three years as a member of the Nicaraguan mixed claims commission.

After stating that he could not discuss his conference with the President, Judge Thompson said:

"It has always been my opinion as a result of my three-year residence in Nicaragua that the treaty should be ratified if for no other reason than the fact that it will afford us a naval station and strategic base at the only deep water harbor on the Pacific coast between California and Panama, about midway."

"Further, it furnishes the opening wedge to the accomplishment of a humanitarian act so far reaching in its moral influence for tranquility and stability as to establish in the very heart of Central America an example and proof of our unselfish desire to co-operate with and help an unfortunate people to redeem themselves from the errors of their ways."

Effects of Treaty.

"If the treaty is not ratified because of the alleged unrepresentative character of the present Nicaraguan government we would be but adopting a more exacting attitude than has heretofore been adopted by us in entering into treaties with other Latin American countries and condoning a reversal of the old regime and the lack of the very political virtues which now form the main point in the indictment of the opposition to the treaty."

"It at least seems inconsistent to require Nicaragua to set itself up on a higher political and economic plane and to pursue more moral attributes than is exacted or expected of many other Latin American republics. We do not, as a rule, go back of the record and analyze the local politics which placed one of the parties in power in a foreign country."

"Some 30,000 to 40,000 votes were cast at the election of President Diaz and the number of two senators from the opposite party was in subsequent senatorial elections increased to five or six. This demonstrates that the opposing party has accepted the government of President Diaz, which demonstration gains convincing force as time goes on."

Would Solve Relations.

"The present administration in Nicaragua, because of its friendly attitude to us, furnishes a splendid opportunity for the demonstration of a principle that would tend to educate the people up to a point where natural rights would be asserted and the voice of reason would be heard."

"Our sympathy and moral support should be with the upholders of the common people, whose task is naturally a difficult one, and we cannot consistently as a court of appeal condemn a government for its political imprudence on a technicality."

"Our assistance and co-operation was sought by President Diaz in 1910, after seventeen years of perfunctory revolution, administrative abuses, an accumulation of debts and claims, and the consequent of the republic with ruinous and illegal concessions to foreigners by the regime of Zelaya."

Help Country to Recuperate.

While it is true that the $3,000,000 to be paid to Nicaragua under the treaty will not satisfy all her debts, yet it is equally true that half this amount, if not more, is being paid by the common people there, in the shape of awards of the mixed claims commission; also the moral influence of the treaty will open up the vast natural resources of the republic and increase the customs receipts in such a way as to put the country on a paying basis and enable it to negotiate loans on much better terms than it could do under the old regime, because of its small income and the only security she could offer being the constant object of revolution."

"The mixed claims commission sustained the cancellation of the illegal Zelaya commissions, thus releasing vast natural resources."
